

LESSON #6 state changes

State changes are necessary throughout your presentation to _____
_____ of the virtual room.

Naturally, conducting state changes in a virtual room is quite different than a live presentation room, but even more important.

You can be as inventive as you like with your virtual state changes. Here's a list of a few that work well.

Reactions

Participants can react during a meeting by an emoji to communicate. Reactions will disappear after 5 seconds. Possible reactions include:

- Clapping Hands
- Thumbs up
- Heart
- Tears of Joy
- Open Mouth
- Party Popper (Tada, Celebration)

“Everyone give that a thumbs up!” Thank you.

“Can I get everyone to show some tears of joy?” Thank you

Polling

Polls are great for audience engagement. To setup and launch a poll please check out this online tutorial.

Gamification

Personal Facts Guessing Game: Attendees submit a personal fact in advance and the audience uses polling to guess who belongs to which fact.

Lunch Break Scavenger Hunt: For a day-long meeting, give attendees an hour, walkaway lunch break, but give them a short, fun photo scavenger hunt. They can use a social media hashtag to post and track it, or submit in another way (specific email, polling software, survey, etc.)

Pet Photos: At a break, encourage attendees to share photos of the pets that are keeping them company while they attend your online event.

Attendee Networking

Use breakout rooms to split your audience up into small groups, or 1-on-1, and give them some guidelines on how to network.

Click here for a tutorial on how to use breakout rooms.

Make the Audience the Star

Ask an attendee to either answer a question or make a brief comment. Have them unmute themselves before participating.

“Thank you, everyone Mary a virtual big-hand.”
